

WT Docket No. 17-80

3007

3. In its MF-II FNPRM, the Commission sought general comment on two options for potential structures for the challenge process and explained that it intended to take the most effective parameters from the options presented, as well as possible additional alternatives offered by commenters, to assemble a “best in class” structure for the challenge process.⁶ Dates for filing comments and reply comments were set as April 12, 2017 and April 27, 2017, respectively.⁷

4. On March 29, 2017, the Wireless Telecommunications Bureau and the Wireline Competition Bureau released a Public Notice proposing to provide additional information about the geographical areas eligible for MF-II support by releasing minimum advertised or expected 4G LTE speeds included in the December 31, 2015 and June 30, 2016 Form 477 filings (and any subsequent Form 477 filings) in order to facilitate Mobility Fund II analysis.⁸ Form 477 filers were given a deadline of April 12, 2017 to provide a full justification in support of requests for confidential treatment of their 4G LTE mobile speeds, pursuant to Section 0.459(b) of the Commission’s rules.⁹

5. On April 7, 2017, CTIA filed a Motion for Extension of Time seeking to extend the comment deadlines for the MF-II FNPRM by 14 days, to April 26, 2017 and May 11, 2017, respectively.¹⁰ CTIA also requested a 14-day extension of time for the April 12, 2017 deadline to file confidentiality justifications for previously-filed Form 477 data.¹¹ CTIA argues that a brief extension is consistent with precedent and the public interest because the extra time will allow the parties to 1) establish a full and complete record, and 2) better address technically complex and complicated questions. CTIA states that the additional time will increase the possibility of its developing an industry consensus proposal, which it claims will address the Commission’s goals and facilitate prompt resolution of the issues relating to the challenge process without any impact on the Commission’s anticipated timeline for resolving challenges.¹² Additionally, CTIA argues that an extension for the deadline to respond to the Public Notice regarding the release of Form 477 4G LTE speed data is also warranted insofar as the Commission has not yet established the parameters of the challenge process, and grant of an extension would harmonize the filing deadlines of these related matters.¹³

6. Section 1.46 of the Commission’s rules provides that “[i]t is the policy of the Commission that extensions of time shall not be routinely granted.”¹⁴ Upon review of the arguments raised in this matter, we agree that a limited extension of the pleading cycle is warranted. We find that a brief extension of the filing deadlines to allow parties to build industry consensus will facilitate the compilation of a complete record and will further the Commission’s goal of reaching a prompt resolution of this matter. We further find that a 14-day extension of the deadline to submit justifications for confidentiality requests for the minimum advertised or expected 4G LTE mobile speeds included in their Form 477 filings is also warranted to allow the related deadlines to remain aligned.

7. Accordingly, IT IS ORDERED, pursuant to sections 4(i), 4(j), 5, and 303(r) of the
